

STEWART'S GREAT SPEECH.

The Journal publishes in full Senator Stewart's silver speech before the Trans-Mississippi congress. It is without exception the greatest argument in favor of silver ever uttered. The APPEAL has not space for the entire speech, but during his speech he said:

"I remember," said Senator Stewart, "what Abraham Lincoln said to me when I was introduced to him. He reached out to me and said: 'So you are from the mining country. I have regard for these miners for they have saved the country, because they furnished the gold and silver which gave us credit without which we could not have carried on the war and the Union would have been lost.' Now these goldbugs sneer at us, and because we want justice and equity they accuse us of robbing the people. What we want is that the great wrong of '73 be righted and that the Nation be restored to its former prosperity."

The Senator referred to the cry about the 65-cent silver dollar, and said that the cry is a fraud. There are only about 4,500,000 ounces of silver bullion in this country, and that, of course, the holders of this bullion would reap some small benefit. But there are in circulation now 4,500,000 of silver dollars, and if these were to be recalled what would be the result? It would contract the currency 1,520,000 of dollars which would either have to be lost sustained by the holders or be made up by the government by taxation.

But, say the goldbugs, it will help the miners, and they cry against the injustice of helping the miner. But why is it unjust? He was the man who pioneered the way into and across these trackless wilds and toiled and labored through the hardship and privation to obtain that which had been money for more than 3,000 years. At the time when the miner opened these mines, and delved for the precious mineral, silver was of a certain settled value as money and since then he has been sacrificed to the avarice of the Rothschilds, his investments destroyed and depreciated. He has ceased to be regarded as a benefactor of the people. The demonization of silver was a breach of faith with the man who had made these investments of money and time and labor and a crime against him.

The Senator made a forcible speech, argumentative, but at the same time, eloquent, and was frequently interrupted by applause. Numbers of times the applause was deafening and continued for several moments. At the close of the applause, which fairly shook the building, was followed by three rousing cheers for the "champion defender of silver."

JIM-CRACKS.

Townsend's paper has the following:

Forecast Foster is turning storms loose all over the country. It is about time that he was getting out of wind.

A silver dollar is an inch and a half in diameter, a half-dollar an inch, a quarter three-quarters of an inch. To many persons round here they look to be bigger than a race-track.

"Home Again."

The fragments of the APPEAL office have been gathered together and there are more than 12 baskets full. We are now back in the old quarters and the printers are even more joyful over the fact that no office cleaning is indulged in. During the hurry of moving before, all the plaster fell off the wall and there is no danger of further trouble from that source. A few things may be misplaced, but we always have in some handy place a nice tablet of bill heads which we are prepared to receipt for delinquent subscribers and advertisers.

Chester Ayers, with traps baited with cotton saturated with a nostrum whose odor is pleasant to the nostrils of coyotes, has been able to capture and kill within five weeks forty-six coyotes in Mendocino county, whose scalps bring him near $1,450, the bounty from the county and the sheepmen.

The latest postal laws are such that newspaper publishers can arrest any one for fraud who takes a paper and refuses to pay for it.
